

Dear Neighbor,

Please save the date for this fall's 6th Council District neighborhood cleanup from 8 a.m. to noon Saturday, October 2, with the usual drop off sites at the parking lots of Ruskin High School, 7000 E. 111th St., and South-Broadland Presbyterian Church, 7850 Holmes Rd.

There is no charge for KCMO residents to drop off bulky items such as old furniture, leaves & brush, tires with or without rims and trash at both sites, and free document shredding is available at both sites.

Electronics also may be dropped off at the Ruskin site, but there are different charges for various items that are listed on the attached flyer.

Persons may contact Robert Woods at the City Neighborhoods & Community Services Department at 816-513-8442 for more information.

The events are co-sponsored by 6th District City Council members Andrea Bough and Mayor Pro Tem Kevin McManus, Community Assistance Council and South Kansas City Alliance.

There also is a document shredding and electronics recycling event sponsored by the Urban Ranger Corps from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, September 11, in the parking lot of St. Elizabeth Catholic Church, 2 E. 75th St. Persons may enter the parish parking lot from 74th St. between Main and Wyandotte.

The only charge for the service is $20 to $25 for TVs and $15 for all monitors. Donations will be accepted to support the Urban Rangers program which gives boys and young men from 12 to 18 the opportunity to develop the life skills necessary to become successful and contributing members of society.

See the attached flyer for details on what types of electronics will be accepted.

Persons are asked to wear masks at all of these events.

Email is probably the best way to reach my office. If you are unable to quickly reach me, my legislative aide, Kaylee Bauer is ready to help you.

WEEKLY CAPITOL UPDATE

ATTORNEY GENERAL TARGETS MASK MANDATES

Attorney General Eric Schmitt filed a lawsuit on Aug. 24 seeking to block Missouri public schools from enforcing mask requirements designed to keep students, faculty and staff safe as the COVID-19 delta variant continues to sweep through the state.

Schmitt has made his legal efforts to thwart local government responses to the continuing pandemic a central component of his campaign for the Republican nomination for a U.S. Senate seat that's up for election in 2022.

The lawsuit, filed in Boone County Circuit Court, directly challenges the mask mandate adopted by the Columbia Public Schools. However, Schmitt is seeking class-action status so that a ruling in his favor also would apply to all other Missouri school districts.

In the lawsuit, Schmitt said he “seeks to protect the welfare of Missouri’s children and the liberty and constitutional rights of the people of Missouri.”

The latest guidance from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommends universal indoor masking in schools, including for vaccinated adults. At present, none of the three COVID-19 vaccinations in widespread use in the U.S. have been approved for children under age 12, putting them at particular risk.

Although children appeared less susceptible to COVID-19 early in the pandemic, infection rates among children have soared with the highly contagious delta variant.

As The Kansas City Star and other news outlets reported, White House Press Secretary Jennifer Psaki, during an Aug. 24 media briefing, sharply criticized the lawsuit for putting children at risk. “The president thinks that’s completely unacceptable,” Psaki said.

As the current school year – the third impacted by the pandemic – gets underway, at least 50 Missouri school districts have adopted mask requirements to mitigate the spread of COVID-19.

Critics contend Schmitt’s lawsuit, if successful, greatly increases the likelihood of more school districts being forced to shift from in-person instruction to on-line learning in order to contain outbreaks.

As of Aug. 25, no hearing date had been set in the case, State of Missouri ex rel. Eric Schmitt v. Columbia Public Schools.

So far, Schmitt has not requested a temporary restraining order prohibiting enforcement of mask mandates while the case is adjudicated, which could take months. As a result, such requirements will remain in place for the foreseeable future.

MOST NEW LAWS TAKE EFFECT AUG. 28

Most of the new state laws the Missouri General Assembly enacted during this year's regular legislative session will take effect Aug. 28, including high-profile measures relating to taxation and policing.

Some of these measures have later effective dates for certain of their provisions and emergency clauses for other provisions that made those provisions effective immediately when the governor signed those bills into law earlier this summer.

Senate Bill 262 gradually increases Missouri's fuel tax, which has been set at 17 cents per gallon since 1996, by an additional 12.5 cents over several years. The first of five 2.5-cent increases will kick in Oct. 1. When fully implemented, the increase is expected to generate around $500 million a year in additional revenue for state and local transportation projects.

Missouri currently has one of the nation's lowest state fuel taxes and one of the nation's largest highway systems.

Another tax measure, Senate Bill 153, makes it easier for local governments and the state to collect sales taxes for online purchases that already were due under statute but rarely paid which gave out-of-state online vendors an advantage over vendors that sold their products at stores here in Missouri. Missouri was the last state in the nation to enact such legislation.

The bill also authorizes future cuts to state income taxes if certain revenue collection thresholds are triggered and creates a state-level earned income tax credit to benefit working Missourians.

Senate Bill 26 enacts detailed procedures law enforcement agencies must follow when considering disciplinary action against any officer; bans probation for dangerous felonies if the victim is an on-duty law enforcement officer, fire fighter or emergency service provider; allows taxpayers to seek court injunctions to prevent political subdivisions from decreasing the budgets of their law enforcement agencies over 12% more than the aggregate budgets of other departments over a five-year period; and requires law enforcement agencies to track and report use-of-force incidents.

It bans the state supervisor of liquor control from prohibiting persons from participating in the sale of alcohol because of prior felony convictions.

The bill also includes the sentencing reform amendment I sponsored that allows young offenders sentenced to imprisonment for 15 years or more for an offense or multiple offenses committed when they were under 18 to be eligible to apply for parole after being imprisoned for 15 years. It does not apply to young offenders convicted of first degree or capital murder.

The need for this reform, which will give numerous once young offenders currently incarcerated in Missouri the opportunity to seek a second chance, came to my attention when I became aware of the case of Bobby Bostic who was sentenced to 241 years in prison for multiple offenses that occurred one night in 1995 when as a troubled 16-year-old he accompanied an older youth who later admitted he instigated the crimes that did not include any homicides. Bostic's sentences were imposed consecutively, so without my amendment he would not have been eligible to apply for parole unless he lives to be 112 years old.

Senate Bill 53, institutes wide-ranging criminal justice reforms by prohibiting police from using respiratory chokeholds unless they are defending themselves or another person from serious physical injury or death, requiring law enforcement agencies to track and report use-of-force incidents (as also required by SB 26), increasing penalties for officers who have sexual contact with those in their custody, requiring CEOs of law enforcement agencies to check the circumstances of why an officer they intend to hire left any previous agency and granting prosecutors more authority to ask a court to overturn past wrongful convictions when there is clear and convincing evidence of a person's innocence.

The bill strengthens the law against stalking, allows persons to obtain lifetime orders of protection if a court finds someone poses a serious danger to them or a minor member of their household and protects the confidentiality of tips to crime stoppers organizations.

It also eliminates a requirement that Kansas City police officers and other department employees reside within the city limits, although it allows the Board of Police Commissioners to require that they live within 30 miles of the nearest city boundary and within the state.

Other significant legislation taking effect, some of which received little media coverage, includes:

Senate Bill 63 which creates a statewide prescription drug monitoring program (PDMP) to help prevent abuse of opioid pain killers, making Missouri the last state in the nation to enact such a law. The state program will replace a regional PDMP network started by St. Louis County several years ago in response to the legislature's inaction that ultimately grew to include about 90% of Missouri's population.

House Bill 349, which provides dollar for dollar state tax credits for donors who contribute to nonprofit organizations to fund scholarships for students to attend private K-12 schools. Only students in more populous cities and counties may apply for the scholarships. This legislation would have reduced state revenue up to $50 million annually that later could have been adjusted for inflation up to a cap of $75 million. However, the legislature later approved Senate Bill 86 which included a superseding provision limited the tax credits to $25 million a year to start, with a subsequent $50 million annual cap.

Senate Bill 51, which grants blanket immunity from most lawsuits related to COVID-19 exposure or harm to businesses, health care providers, nursing homes and religious institutions. It provides that businesses and health care providers can only be found liable for COVID-19 exposure or harm if they engaged in "recklessness or willful misconduct", and religious organizations can only be found liable for "intentional misconduct".

House Bill 297, which removes an existing statutory cap on how much public colleges and universities may increase tuition each year and allows college athletes to financially benefit for the use of their names and likenesses, notwithstanding NCAA rules to the contrary.

A handful of other bills passed this year containing emergency clauses, meaning they took effect the moment the governor signed them into law.

One such measure, House Bill 557, makes previously unregulated religious boarding schools subject to state regulation and requires them to follow basic safety requirements such as submitting to fire, safety and health inspections and maintaining medical records for all residents. It also requires the schools to conduct background checks on all employees and volunteers and to guarantee that parents have access to their children.

South Carolina is now the only state in the nation to completely exempt religious boarding schools from state regulation.

New Missouri ‘to-go’ alcohol sales law takes effect Aug. 28

Senate Bill 126 also extends hours for alcohol sales on Sundays to between 6 a.m. Sunday and 1:30 a.m.

Monday

JEFFERSON CITY – The waiver that allowed Missouri restaurants to sell “to-go” alcoholic drinks beginning on April 14, 2020, in response to the coronavirus pandemic, will become permanent when Senate Bill 126 takes effect on Aug. 28. The administrative waiver was granted because many restaurants were severely strained as business dropped off or shifted to take out during 2020. In Missouri, unless they contain an emergency provision, most new laws take effect on Aug. 28.

Before the waiver, to-go alcohol had to be sold in its original package. The new law means that mixed drinks can be sold for off-premises consumption provided:

- The alcohol container is durable, leak-proof, and sealable, and does not exceed 128 ounces;
- The customer must have ordered and purchased a meal simultaneous with the liquor purchase;
- No more than two alcohol drinks may be sold per meal serving;
- The licensee must provide a dated receipt for the meal and alcohol beverage(s); and
- The sealed alcohol container must either be:
 - Placed in a one-time-use, tamperproof, transparent bag which must be securely sealed, or;
 - The container opening must be sealed with tamperproof tape.

The law does not allow liquor licensees to sell mixed drinks in typical “to-go” cups or other containers having a lid with a sipping hole or an opening for straws.

Senate Bill 126 also extends the hours during which alcohol can be sold by the drink and at package stores on Sundays. Liquor licensees permitted to make Sunday sales will legally be able to sell alcohol from 6 a.m. Sunday until 1:30 a.m. Monday, the same hours that apply during the rest of the week.

South KC Mobile Food Pantries

Many families in south Kansas City are being forced to rely on community food pantries such as Community Assistance Council's to have enough to eat.

Fortunately, Harvesters (the community food network) brings the semi-truck that serves as its mobile food pantry to seven sites in south Kansas City monthly to distribute fresh produce and other healthy food to families in need. The sites are:

Center District Warehouse, 8701 Holmes Rd., from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. the second Friday of each month.
